Description
A field on the market in Fterikoudi, Cyprus, set in open countryside close to the village centre. The land covers 1487 m² of agricultural ground. It is irregular in shape with a sloping surface, and its direct road access makes reaching it for farming or planting straightforward.

The neighbouring villages of Platanistasa and Askas are a short drive away, as is a petrol station. The main roads of the wider region, including the Astromeritis–Evrychou Motorway, connect the area with the rest of Nicosia district. This is a practical, uncomplicated piece of agricultural land with a public road along its edge.
