Description
Within the village of Palaiometocho, this residential field offers a sizeable, even stretch of land with room for a home of your own. At 2,178 m², it gives you a generous canvas, and the level ground makes it easy to imagine where a house could stand and how the land around it might be shaped.

The field has an irregular outline and runs along a road on one side, so it has direct road access. Part of it is affected by road widening.

Everyday village life stays close at hand. The village centre and local schools are a short drive away, so school runs and errands fit easily into the day. Lefkovounos is also within easy reach when you want to spend time outdoors.

For anyone picturing a home in a village setting, here is level residential land with room to build a life around the way you want to live.
