Description
Level, south-facing and generously sized, this residential field in Athienou, Cyprus offers an honest, uncomplicated starting point for a family home in one of the Larnaca district's inland towns.

With 3952 m² to work with, there is real room to breathe. The rectangular shape and flat ground make the land easy to plan around, and the southern orientation suits a home designed with the Cypriot climate in mind. The land also has direct road access.

Everyday life stays close at hand. The local elementary school and the town stadium are both within easy reach, so school runs and weekend matches remain short trips rather than journeys. Around it, Athienou keeps the settled, community feel of a town where people know their neighbours, giving a relaxed island lifestyle a natural backdrop.

The zoning is residential, so the setting points clearly towards a home. A wide, level stretch of land in a familiar town setting leaves you free to shape a house and the space around it as you picture it.
