Description
Covering 11706 m², this agricultural field in Farmakas, Cyprus, offers a sizeable piece of countryside in the Nicosia district. The land is zoned for agricultural use, suiting farming or planting, and sits in an open setting away from dense urban development. Its shape is irregular and the ground is uneven. The field is landlocked and has no direct road access.

The villages of Gourri, Agios Epifanios and Fikardou are a short drive away, with a petrol station and the main roads further out. This is a generous, versatile piece of agricultural land in rural Farmakas.
