Description
Thrinia, in the Paphos district, is the setting for this sizeable piece of residential land. Two parcels together cover 9,365 m², with the neighbouring communities of Lasa and Milia a short drive away and Evretou Lake within reach for an afternoon outdoors.

The land is zoned for residential use, and the source allows building of up to two floors. That leaves room for a home designed around your own plans, with the freedom to decide how it should sit on the land. Both parcels front a road, so there is direct road access from the outset, a practical start for any project and one less question to settle before the first sketch.

Picture the early stages: walking the boundaries, deciding where the house should stand and imagining the rooms taking shape across two floors. With nearby villages close at hand for everyday errands, life here can keep a familiar rhythm while the plans take shape.

It is substance over show: generous residential land, a road at its edge and the Paphos district all around, ready to be turned into a place of your own.
