Description
In the farming village of Peristerona, in the Nicosia district, this agricultural field covers 4,348 m². It lies in an area set aside for animal breeding, which gives it a clear use for livestock farming as well as general agricultural work. The village centre is a short drive away, a main road is close by, and the wider road network, including the routes towards Nicosia, is within reach. This is a sizeable piece of agricultural land in a countryside setting away from dense development.
