Description
In the Agios Georgios quarter of Latsia, a large residential field of 6,136 m² opens up a generous canvas on the edge of the capital. Its frontage onto an asphalt road gives it direct road access, and the Nicosia–Limassol motorway is close by, so the heart of the city and the route south towards Limassol both sit within easy reach.

The land is zoned for residential use, with buildings of up to two floors allowed. There is room here for a home set within its own grounds, or for a residential scheme of moderate density, shaped at your own pace and to your own vision.

Everyday life stays simple. Schools and the weekly shop are a short drive away, and neighbouring Lakatameia is close at hand for more of the town's comforts. It is a setting where plans can take root without losing touch with the city around them.

Wide ground, a road along its edge and the capital within easy reach: a field in Latsia waiting for what you will build.
