Description
Olive trees grow on this agricultural field in Polemi, a village in the Paphos district. The land covers 2,500 m² and is planted with olives, with a stream running along one of its boundaries.

The field has direct road access by a registered road along one edge, currently a dirt track. The village centre and the neighbouring village of Psathi are a short drive away, and the Limassol–Paphos Motorway is within a drive. This is farmland with its olive trees already in the ground and its own road access.
