Description
Life in Dora moves at village pace, and this sizeable stretch of residential land lets you settle right into it. Parks and green spaces are within walking distance, and the village centre is only a short drive away, so village life stays close at hand. The land is made up of four fields covering 16,545 m² in all, a generous canvas for anyone who wants to put down roots in this corner of Limassol. Its residential zoning points to room for a home, shaped around the way you want to live. Direct road access runs along one boundary, and a dry stream borders the land on the same side. Picture an early walk to the nearby green spaces, then a short drive into the village for the day's errands, with the land itself waiting as the starting point for your plans. Sizeable residential land, a village setting with a character of its own and parks within reach on foot make a strong place to begin.
