Description
Village life is close at hand in Galata. The centre and the village primary school lie close to this large residential field, and the green expanse of Troodos National Forest Park is a short drive away, so everyday errands and days out among the trees are both within easy reach.

The land covers 31,773 m², a generous canvas for careful planning. A long frontage onto the road gives it direct road access, and the main road linking Galata with its neighbouring villages runs a short way off, keeping Sinaoros and Kaliana within a short drive.

The residential zoning and the setting suit permanent or holiday homes. Picture a family base where children can walk to school, or a retreat to return to each season with the forest within reach. Either way, the size of the field leaves room to shape plans around the plot and its village surroundings.

A sizeable stretch of residential land with road frontage, close to the heart of a village with its own character and to the woodland of Troodos: a setting worth exploring.
