Description
Mountain views set the tone for this field on raised ground near Tsada, a village in the Paphos district. Picture standing at the top of the land in the evening, with the mountains on the horizon and the village close by. It is a setting with real character, and an authentic alternative to town or resort living.

At 10,034 m², the land is large and roughly rectangular, with a steep, sloping surface that follows the lie of the ground. It sits within a residential zone, so there is room for a home that makes the most of its elevated position. A development of houses lies nearby, giving the surroundings a settled, residential feel. The land has no direct road access.

Everyday life is close at hand. The centre of Tsada, with its cafés and shops, is a short drive away, and the village of Koili is equally near. Peaceful countryside living and village life sit side by side here.

High ground, open mountain views and room for a home in a village setting make this a field to remember.
