Description

High-Yield Development and Strategic Acquisition

The Foundation of Your Future. This 514 sqm newly divided residential plot in Pano Deftera represents a premium development opportunity in one of Nicosia's most sought-after suburban growth zones. Falling within the high-density H1 planning zone, the property provides an exceptional building density of 120% and a 70% coverage factor, offering the technical capacity for a modern three-storey residential building with a maximum height of 11.4 meters. This density profile is ideal for a high-yield boutique apartment complex or a series of sophisticated family homes that capitalize on the area's increasing demand for high-quality urban-fringe living. In March 2026, the Nicosia residential market is entering a new era of growth following the landmark January 1st tax reform, which fully abolished stamp duty on all new property contracts and removed the Special Defence Contribution on rental income, significantly improving net yields for residential developers and landlords. Furthermore, the 2026 market is bolstered by the government's nearly doubled Capital Gains Tax exemptions and the new Smart City infrastructure upgrades currently extending into the capital's suburban corridors. The plot's regular shape, superior technical specifications, and placement within a mature residential enclave ensure a secure and appreciating investment, a standard of smart investment we have guided for 3 decades of experience.
