Description
Close to the centre of Pigenia, a village in the Nicosia District, this residential field offers a generous piece of land with room for a home, within easy reach of village life.

The field covers 5,468 m². The ground slopes and the shape is irregular, so a thoughtful design that follows the lie of the land would serve it well. Its residential zoning points to a home, with the village close by rather than out on its own.

Daily life stays simple from here. Shops and cafés are a short drive away, so the weekly errands and a morning coffee stay close at hand. For a change of scene, Pomos Reservoir is a drive away, a natural spot for a slow afternoon outdoors.

A large residential field near the heart of a Cyprus village, with room to plan a home around the life of the village.
