Description
In the village of Dora, set between the village church and the community centre, this residential field places a future home within the everyday rhythm of village life. Neighbours, local gatherings and the familiar landmarks of the community are all close at hand rather than somewhere down a country lane.

The land covers 2,874 m², with a sloping surface and an irregular shape, and it has direct road access along one of its boundaries. Its residential zoning gives room for a home, and the sloping ground is something to consider when shaping a design that works with the land rather than against it.

Beyond the village, neighbouring Kidasi and Mousere are a short drive away. Further afield, the wider region holds the heritage site of Petra tou Romiou, a reminder of the history woven through this part of Limassol District.

A plot at the centre of a Cypriot village, between its church and its community heart, offers a setting to build a home in the middle of village life rather than at its edge.
