Description
Village life in Dora sets the tone here. Two adjoining fields sit within the residential zone, a short way from the village centre, with parks and green spaces within walking distance.

Together the fields cover 4,684 m² and form a regular shape, a clear outline to plan around. The ground itself is uneven. As residential land, it offers room for a home with the everyday rhythm of the village close at hand: its centre, its cafés and its neighbours. The fields front a public road along one boundary, though that road has not yet been built on site.

For anyone drawn to a Limassol village rather than the city, this is a sizeable, well-shaped piece of residential land with Dora's centre just down the way.
