Description
Space is the great luxury of the Cypriot countryside, and this residential field in Troulloi offers it in good measure. Set within easy reach of the village centre, it sits in authentic village surroundings in the Larnaca district, where life moves at a slower pace and the community still feels close-knit. At 8027 m², the land is generous by any standard, with its residential zoning pointing naturally towards a home of your own. The ground slopes and the outline is irregular, giving the field a natural, landscape-led character rather than the neat lines of a suburban lot. A single olive tree stands on the land, a small reminder of the rural heritage that shapes this part of the island. Troulloi offers an honest alternative to resort living: a village with its own identity, set among open countryside yet within the wider Larnaca area. Here, a home could be planned around the lie of the land, with room to breathe on every side. What stays with you is the sheer amount of space, in a setting rooted in the authentic side of Cyprus.
