Description
Village life sets the tone for this single-storey home in Agios Georgios, sitting on a large plot of 6,021 m² that borders the village's residential area. The village centre is a short drive away, and the neighbouring villages of Lofou and Silikou are close by as well.

Inside, an open-plan living, dining and kitchen area forms the heart of the house, a natural place for the household to gather. There are three bedrooms, the main one with its own shower room, along with a family bathroom and a guest toilet. Outside, covered terraces and a courtyard offer room to sit out in the open air, and there is covered parking.

The land fronts a public road, so it has direct road access, and its agricultural zoning leaves the wider grounds open to farming. The house has sustained extensive damage. It is vacant.

A practical family layout, generous land and a village community right beside it make this a house worth bringing back to life.
