Description
In the heart of Flasou, with the village centre a short stroll from the door, this semi-detached two-storey house has been part of village life since around 1935. Renovated in 2009, it carries its long history into a more recent chapter.

On the ground floor, an open-plan entrance leads to a room with a fireplace, a natural place to gather on cool winter evenings, and to a bedroom with its own bathroom. Upstairs are three more bedrooms, served by a shower and a toilet. The upper floor is reached by an external staircase in the yard.

Outside, a large covered veranda and a garden give the house room to breathe, with space for long meals out of the sun and slow afternoons at home. Beyond the village, the Solea Reservoir and the Cyprus Train Museum are a short drive away, bringing open water and a touch of local history within easy reach for a weekend outing.

A village home with a fireplace for winter, a veranda for summer and a garden of its own, right at the centre of Flasou.
