Description
In the countryside of Agios Theodoros, in the Larnaca district, two adjoining fields form one sizeable holding of 26,800 m². Each field measures 13,400 m² and has a gently sloping surface. One is roughly rectangular, and the other is irregular in shape. The land is zoned for agricultural use and suits farming or planting.

The surrounding area is made up mostly of undeveloped land with some scattered residential developments. The village of Alaminos is a short drive away, and Mazotos is also within a drive. The land has no direct road access. Together, the two fields offer a large, gently sloping stretch of agricultural land in rural surroundings.
