Description
A river runs along two sides of this residential field in Agios Georgios, giving the land a natural edge and a softer outlook from its boundaries. Around it, Latsia shows a mix of homes and undeveloped parcels, with supermarkets and shops within walking distance for everyday errands on foot.

The field covers 2,583 m² of residential land, with room for a home of up to three floors. That is a generous canvas for shaping a house and a way of life around the riverside setting, within a town where daily needs are close by.

Life beyond the plot stays within reach too. Athalassa Lake is a short drive away for time outdoors, and Strovolos and Nicosia General Hospital are both a short drive from the town.

The field has no direct road access at present.

A riverside field within Latsia, with space to imagine a home taking shape beside the water.
