Description
Among homes and open parcels in Kaimakli, Nicosia, this level field sits within the everyday rhythm of the capital, a sizeable piece of land in a neighbourhood where residential life and undeveloped ground share the streets.

At 2,583 m², the land forms a neat rectangle with a flat, even surface, an unpretentious shape that is easy to read and easy to picture. It carries residential zoning, and water, electricity and telecommunications are all close at hand.

Two points deserve a clear mention. The field lies within the buffer zone. It has no direct road access.

What remains is a calm, level stretch of land in Kaimakli, set among residential surroundings, with the general use of its zone pointing towards homes and the services of the city nearby.
