Description
Right in the centre of Korakou, this three-bedroom house places the everyday rhythm of village life on your doorstep. Built in 1960 and renovated around 2010, it offers a comfortable home among the residential streets of the village.

Inside, the living room, dining area and kitchen share one open-plan space, with a fireplace to gather around on winter evenings. Three bedrooms and a bathroom complete the layout, finished with ceramic and marble tiles, double-glazed windows and split units for the warmer months.

Outside there is a covered veranda, plus a small yard with a pergola and a barbecue area. It is easy to imagine slow weekend lunches under the pergola and summer evenings around the grill with family and friends.

Beyond the village, the Solea Reservoir is a short drive away and the Troodos National Forest Park is within reach for days in the hills, while easy links towards Nicosia and the neighbouring villages keep daily life simple. A warm village home, with space inside and out to enjoy it.
