Description
Surrounded by vineyards and farmland, this agricultural field lies in the countryside around Laneia. Laneia is a small Limassol village where most of the nearby land is used for farming, especially vines. The field covers 8,026 m² of irregular, rough ground that slopes across the plot. It has direct road access from a dirt road along one side.

Its agricultural zoning suits farming and planting. The villages of Limnatis and Monagri are a short drive away, and the Limassol - Paphos Motorway can be reached by car. This is a sizeable field of farmland in a mainly undeveloped landscape of fields and vineyards.
